About Us

Oakwood Community Center (OCC) offers a welcoming and nurturing space for the diverse residents of Troy to meet as strangers and become neighbors who care and advocate for each other. We maintain our historic building in order to make the Food Pantry at Oakwood available every Saturday; provide free or low cost meeting/event space for neighbors and small groups; and to support individuals who want to develop programming targeted to our neighborhood, but may need help with space, resources or organizational development skills. OCC is building its performing arts education to performance pipeline with Oakwood Techniques, now in its third year of working with youth to develop a lifelong passion for the performing arts as a tool for creative expression by pairing students with local Guest Artists. OCC relies on donations from supporters, grants from local foundations and rental income from organizations who rent out space in our building and share our worldview.
